 Malta knightships are awarded to many leading individuals who are part of the military and intelligence community. The CIA's Bill Casey, for example, was Knight of Malta. Former NATO General (and later US Secretary of State) Alexander Haig is also a Malta Knight. Another is General Vernon Walters, the former Deputy Director of the CIA under DCI George Bush and later appointed a roving Ambassador during the Reagan administration. The legendary head of the OSS - the WWII precursor of the CIA - was "Wild" Bill Donovan, who was made a Knight along with his wartime compatriot and later CIA chief of counter-intelligence, James Jesus Angleton. And John McCone, another prominent member of the US "spook" agency was also distinguished with a Malta knightship.
